Response to RCE and Amendment

Applicant's arguments with respect to claims have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. § 103 which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Subject matter developed by another person, which qualifies as prior art only under subsection (f) or (g) of section 102 of this title, shall not preclude patentability under this section where the subject matter and the claimed invention were, at the time the invention was made, owned by the same person or subject to an obligation of assignment to the same person.

This application currently names joint inventors. In considering patentability of the claims under 35 U.S.C. § 103, the examiner presumes that the subject matter of the various claims was commonly owned at the time any inventions covered therein were made absent any evidence to the contrary. Applicant is advised of the obligation under 37 C.F.R. § 1.56 to point out the inventor and invention dates of each claim that was not commonly owned at the time a later invention was made in order for the examiner to consider the applicability of potential 35 U.S.C. § 102(f) or (g) prior art under 35 U.S.C. § 103.

Claim 13 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. § 103 as being unpatentable over Sugawara ('270) in view of Yamakage (63-254754).

The document of Sugawara ('270) in Figures 1-2 discloses the claimed invention with the exception of a fan and a plate having a plurality of heat pipes.

Art Unit: 3743

The document of Yamakage ('754) in figure 6 discloses that it is known to have a fan (8) and a plurality of heat pipes (4) attached to a heat receiving plate (2) for the purpose of maximizing the amount of heat transfer from an electronic device within a given space. It would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to employ in Sugawara ('270) a fan and a plurality of heat pipes attached to a heat receiving plate for the purpose of maximizing the amount of heat transfer from an electronic device within a given space as disclosed in Yamakage ('754).

Claims 14 and 16 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. § 103 as being unpatentable over Sugawara ('270) in view of Yamakage (63-254754) as applied to claim 13 above, and further in view of Inoue et al. ('789) or applicant cited reference Ishida ('258). The patent of Sugawara ('270) as modified, discloses all the claimed features of the invention with the exception of the fins attached to each end of the heat pipes.

The document's of Inoue et al. ('789) and Ishida ('258) disclose that it is known to have fins attached across each end a heat pipe for the purpose of increasing the heat transfer surface area of the heat removal section of the heat pipes. It would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to employ in Sugawara ('270) as modified, fins attached across each end a plurality of heat pipes for the purpose of increasing the heat transfer surface area of the heat removal section of the heat pipes as disclosed in Inoue et al. ('789) and Ishida ('258).
